U.K. Hoop Fortunes Depend On Hazard's Johnnie Cox

Johnnie Cox

Not since the famed Wallace (Wah Wah) Jones came down from the hills of the Bluegrass country to lead the Kentucky Wildcats to one of their greatest eras in basketball, climaxed by winning the world's championship in the 1948 Olympics has a Kentucky college hailed as one of the greatest Kentucky high school products in recent times. And, in the short space of two seasons as a collegian, Cox is living up to every inch of his reputation and has aroused the imagination of rabid Kentucky fans who envision him as a carbon copy of the Jones who was one of the greatest of Kentucky's cage All-Americans.

Cox capped off a brilliant sophomore campaign last year by gaining a spot on the All-Southeastern Conference honor five, being picked on the All-NCAA Tournament Eastern Regional team and becoming one of top 15 sophomores in the land as he was named to the third team All-America.

A seemingly lazy off-court attitude belies the fact that Cox is an all-around demon on the hardwood. He operates with an almost reckless abandon during the heat of action, giving it all he's got for as long as his stamina will hold out. Last season, he popped in 544 points in 28 tough games against top flight opposition to lead all the Wildcats and become the highest average scoring soph in Kentucky's history with his 19.4 average output.

Operating out of a forward position in the blistering Kentucky-style fast break, Johnny forgot completely his stooped, shouldered, loping mannerisms and kept pace with the fastest teammate and opponent on both offense and defense.

Further contradicting his seemingly frail physique, the Kentucky rifleman saw more action than any other Wildcat last season—a total of 966 minutes and 51 seconds out of a possible 1120 minutes. And he was more proficient than anyone in the scoring department, averaging a point every minute and 46 seconds during the time he was in the game.

K. M. A. Urges Take Free Test For Diabetes

Every man, woman, and child in Kentucky was urged by Robert J. Hoffman, M. D., South Ft. Mitchell, chairman of the Kentucky State Medical Association's Diabetes Committee, to take advantage of the free diabetes tests offered by physicians, hospitals and laboratories during National Diabetes Week which begins Sunday.

The importance of early detection of diabetes was stressed by Governor A. B. Chandler, who has proclaimed the period from November 16-22 as Diabetes Week in Kentucky.

"An estimated 1,000,000 persons in this country and 15,000 in Kentucky alone have undiscovered diabetes," said Dr. Hoffman, "and it is to find these people and to give them an opportunity to take advantage of available control measures that the KSMA has sponsored the drive annually since 1951."

Baptist Church Dedicates Bell Honoring Late Rev. A.S. Petrey

Hazard banker Dewey Daniel was lauded yesterday afternoon for his role in saving the "old bell" from the First Baptist Church during impressive dedication ceremonies at the First Baptist Church.

The bell, removed from the old First Baptist Church, was dedicated to the memory of the late Rev. A. S. Petrey, the founder of several Baptist churches throughout this region, including the First Baptist Church.

It was Daniel, the gathering of Eastern Kentucky Baptists was told, who first noted that the bell should be saved and dedicated to Mr. Petrey's memory.

The Hazard banker financed the erection of the bell at a point on the Kentucky River near the church.

Yesterday's afternoon ceremony was to dedicate the bell, Baptist from throughout the Three Forks Baptist Association attended the ceremonies at the First Baptist.

The following program was held: song service, the Rev. Winn T. Barr, pastor, First Baptist Church, scripture reading by Shafter Couch, pastor, Combs Baptist Church, prayer by Asbel Couch, a namesake of the late Mr. Petrey and pastor of the Gays Creek Baptist Church, special music by the choir of the First Baptist Church; recognition of Mr. Daniel and visitors by the Rev. Barr, a duet by Mrs. H. A. Spaulding, daughter of the late Mr. Petrey, and her son, Dick Spaulding, address by L. O. Griffith, promotion director of the Home Mission Board of Southern Baptist Convention, Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Griffith spoke on "The Future of A. S. Petrey." Benediction by Dr. D. M. Aldridge, president, Clear Creek Bible School.

Following ceremonies at the church, participants gathered outside for dedication services at the bell. The bell was tolled by Stanley Petrey, grandson and namesake of the late Mr. Petrey. Combs Renews Drive After Aiding Ticket In Tuesday's Vote

Bert Combs returns to the political wars in his own behalf next week following Tuesday's General Election.

The candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in next May's Primary had devoted much of his time in the past several weeks to campaigning for the Democratic tickets, including candidates for Congress in all Congressional Districts and the Court of Appeals.

Other gubernatorial candidates also joined Combs in the effort.

The Combs schedule for the Democratic Party included television talks in Louisville and in Eastern Kentucky and personal appearance in all parts of the state.

While Combs has been giving his attention to urging a Democratic vote, his campaign headquarters in Louisville mapped plans for future meetings in behalf of Combs' own candidacy.

Thus far four major regional sessions have been held, with approximately 3,000 supporters on hand to give reports on the progress of the Combs campaign in each of Kentucky's 120 counties.

Knott Co. Votes Public Health Tax

At the polls the people of Knott County have shown that they are progressive in their interest in the public welfare.

They rose above party spirit realizing that our Public Health Department serves for the well being of every one of our citizens regardless of the party in power. By the two thirds majority vote in favor of the small increase in taxation for the support of a more adequate and efficient Health Department, the people have expressed their belief that—"Public Health is Public Wealth."

Citizens Health Committee, Knott County Board of Health and the Knott County Staff unite in expressing their appreciation to all who cooperated in helping make possible this far reaching objective. Through the years ahead we will see the wisdom of the course we have chartered for ourselves and our children. A note of special thanks is expressed to the Future Homemakers Clubs of this county who helped to enlighten the people and urged them to vote in their own interest.

Through this forward step the Citizens Health Committee will continue to work toward the building of the New Health Center which will have offices and modern facilities thereby providing the means of a greater health service for our needy citizens.

If we failed to explain the true issues to some who may have voted against this proposal, remember, there is no ill will cherished. In the words of one of our famous citizens of yesterday, we would say, "With malice toward none; with charity toward all."

Mrs. Lula Merrill gave a dinner at her home at Krypton. Her guests were Mrs. Almira Combs, Kathleen Grigsby, Ora Campbell, her two daughters, Mrs. Gladys Merrill, Jean Colwell, one grand daughter.

Everyone reported a good time. Ora Campbell is Deputy Daughters of America at Krypton.

GOD HEARD ME PRAY

Years ago, one snowy winter night,
Death came into my home,
Leaving me with six small children,
The future all unknown.

Long years I toiled daily,
With weak, feeble hands
To feed my helpless children,
In a lonely, friendless, land.

People told me I could not keep them,
Told me to give them away,
But praise God forever,
He heard me when I prayed.

There were many widows in Israel,
God sent Elijah to only one,
She was preparing to bake her last meal,
To give bread to her son.

Many years through heat and cold,
I worked to feed my band,
And, through the darkest hours,
I kept holding to God's hand.

The meal barrel would be empty,
Many times, along life's way,
But, Elijah's God is my God,
And He heard me, when I prayed.

My children are scattered now,
And many miles from me,
May God who heard and answered prayers,
Near them ever be.

The God who sent Elijah,
To the widow long ago,
Is the same all-wise God,
He does all things right, I know.

My prayers will soon be ended,
Soon, my heartache will be o'er,
I will find rest, and peace at last,
On a calm and peaceful shore.

—Rebecca Jones.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

John Caudill, Associate County Extension Agent

J. A. Smith has been designated chairman of farm, city week which will be observed Nov. 21-27. Elmer Holliday and Paul Keen, members of committee, accompanied Judge Smith to a planning meeting in Jackson last Thursday evening. Farm city week is set up to give new meaning and recognition to the interdependence of urban people of our county.

The Hazard Kiwanis Club will invite farm leaders as guests at the club meeting on Nov. 25. Each member will invite a guest. A special program is planned.

Millepede Control

From now on until the first "hard frost" of the year, Kentuckians will be dealing with a household pest known to science as the millepede.

These dark brown insects, about a half to one inch long, come inside houses at this time of year, principally at night. They do little damage, but are repulsive looking and when stepped on, leave a hard-to-remove stain. Kentuckians know them as "cement" worms, "wire-worms," or even "thousand-legger" worms. Insecticides placed around the house in bands about 10 feet wide are effective barriers. These bands should be placed as barriers in areas such as front steps, front porches or stoops where millepedes will crawl.

The tiny pests enter through cellar windows, cracks in the foundation and even under doors. They are attracted by light, which means one should leave porch lights off at night. An electric light positioned about 10 feet from the house and left burning at night may attract the millepedes away from the house.

Another helpful device is to clean away from the house all wood, leaves, paper, limbs, etc., as millepedes live in these trash piles.

Insecticides to be used should contain Heptachlor or Aldrin. Chlordane granules work too, but not as well as the other two. Use them in the 2.5 percent to 10 percent strength. Pets and children should be prevented from getting the insecticides in their mouths or in drinking water.

Egg Storage

Don't leave eggs at room temperature any longer than necessary. If you don't want them to lose their good fresh flavor, home economists in research at the U. S. Department of Agriculture recommend keeping eggs in the refrigerator for coldest storage without their freezing. Tests show that prompt, continuous refrigeration is necessary for them to hold their fresh flavor.

In laboratory experiments, newly-laid eggs that were refrigerated for 13 weeks, then were soft cooked, had as good flavor as Grade A eggs. Eggs refrigerated for 25 weeks in the tests still gave Grade A flavor to baked custards and angel food cakes.

State Employees Sing With Best In Barber Shop

Modern living has made little change in the Kentuckian's love for good singing, says Deputy Insurance Commissioner E. J. W. Fennell. That love reaches into the ranks of state employees who are actively engaged in promoting barber shop singing in America, adds Fennell.

Behind his desk in the Old Capitol Annex a large poster proclaims: "The Greatest Barber Shop Show On Earth—Saturday, Nov. 15, 1958—Memorial Coliseum—Lexington, Ky." Fennell and other state employees are members of the Versailles Chapter, Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America. The group is sponsoring a barber shop show featuring seven quartets which have been international champions since 1947.

The show is an annual project of the Versailles club. In eight of the last nine performances Gov. A. B. Chandler has been the master of ceremonies. A conflicting date will prevent the governor from assuming his role this year, Fennell said.

During the 1958 show, Chandler commissioned members of the Versailles chorus Kentucky colonels. The colonels will sing in this year's show.

State employees singing with the group include William F. Nave, commissioner of personnel, lead and solo; Capt. Charles Sparrow, Department of Public Safety, bass; Moss Vance, Department of Public Safety, baritone and solo; Ed Henry, Department of Personnel, baritone; Matt Amato, Highway Department, bass, and Fennell, bass.

—by John Smedley—
Well, let's just take it easy for awhile and not try to keep up with the Joneses.

Now as the election is over, and the bond issue was voted down. You can hear all kinds of talk about it yet. One fellow said, "Oh Well," we still have the Old Kentucky River to count on. She's done the job for many years.

Another one said, oh what's a little odor compared to a half million bucks.

Recently discharged from the U. S. Navy was Howard Cockrell, Machinist Mate 32nd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Moody Cockrell of Harvorton. Howard who just returned from the Philippines Islands was given his discharge at San Francisco after a four years service. Howard was on ship USS A064 Tollovana.

Morris Fork's Fair Has Unusual Aspects

Morris Fork's community fair in Breathitt county is a different kind, it's a fair that is actually a family "affair."

And that's the way the Rev. Sam VanderMeer, founder and director of the Morris Fork community center, "affair director," wants it.

Instead of competing individually, community families compete as a unit. Mother may get a blue ribbon on canned tomatoes; sister may get a blue ribbon on a hooked rug; brother may win the field crop section; and father may have a top ribbon for the best pumpkin—but they all count for naught individually.

Instead, the points are "pooled" during the one-day meeting, and if the family can also get a few points in other activities—such as foot-racing or folk-dancing—the family may be in a "fair" way (pardon the pun) of winning a title or a family prize package.

As community fairs go, VanderMeer's occasion is the exception that proves the rule. But what he does there, emphasizing family-unit competition, could well be copied by other less successful fairs.

VanderMeer, a New Jersey native who came to Kentucky more than 30 years ago as a Christian worker and school teacher, conceived the community fair idea as a means of helping the area's folk in homemaking. In the early formative years the VanderMeers frequently had to put out their own canned foods as an inducement to the folk to show their own.

But over the years, the gentle art of suggestion has ceased to be necessary. Now Morris Fork school's sizable rooms are jammed full of fruits, vegetables, forages, field crops, foods, clothes, bric-a-brac, etc. In fact, getting around through the displays is comparable to running an Army obstacle course.

That isn't to say that the exhibits are dumped in the premises without order; not so; they simply are so numerous that the exhibitors find it hard to get enough space. This year there were 300 entries and several family booths.

The success of the program is evident in the one-day program. The casual visitor, thinking he is going to see a typical county fair, is greatly surprised at the organization and participation.

The day's affair starts off with a band concert and parade of all the participants. Generally the marching units are groups from the various grammar schools in the area.

A very short speaking program follows, after which the fair proper starts. Hundreds of visitors inspect the exhibit—and they must have a great interest in the articles on display because some of the "attenders" hike over the hills to get there, while others come by horseback. About as many others come in cars, trucks, wagons and school buses—but the important thing is, they get there.

The afternoon session is the excitement-provoker. VanderMeer, with a keen eye to crowd appeal, organized various foot races years ago and they have now become a major portion of the day. Youngsters participate in straight foot races, three-legged races, sack races, and the like. At the evening session, there are folk games and folk dances.

The main objective of the fair has been well accomplished over the years. That is to show residents of the remote areas what their neighbors are doing in home and crop improvement work, but also to give them a well organized fun session once a year at the Morris Fork community center near Jackson.

Geologist Shaler Discovered Ky.'s Natural Wealth

Nathaniel Southgate Shaler, Union Army officer, paleontologist, geologist, professor, college dean, scientific writer, poet, historian, brilliant conversationalist and speaker, but the greatest of these, at least to a resident of Kentucky today—geologist.

Shaler, native of Newport, was sent to Cambridge at 17 to prepare for a classical education at Harvard. There, tiring of the unimaginative fashion of rote learning, he became attracted to the brilliant teaching of Louis Agassiz at Lawrence Scientific School. He was soon one of the favorite pupils of Agassiz and graduated summa cum laude in geology and zoology in 1862.

With time out largely for army service and a trip abroad, Shaler was appointed in 1869 professor of paleontology at Harvard. Four years later, the third geological survey was authorized in Kentucky, and Shaler was appointed its director. He served from 1873 to 1880 until compelled to resign when a bill was passed in Kentucky requiring the state geologist to live in Frankfort. From 1884 to 1900, he was director of the Atlantic Coast Division of the United States Geological Survey. These were remarkable accomplishments, added as they were to Shaler's teaching duties, his position as dean of Lawrence Scientific School from 1891 to his death, and his many writings on scientific and varied other subjects, including a history of Kentucky.

Shaler's work on the third geological survey can hardly be overemphasized. The first two surveys known by the last names of the directors, Mather (1838) and Owen (1854-60) had proved in a systematic way that the earlier pioneers and settlers of Kentucky has suspected about the rich resources of the state. Though Shaler's work was terminated prematurely, the third survey brought home for the first time the full significance of the great untapped wealth of the Commonwealth in timber, iron, and coal. One estimate in 1878, for example, as a result of the Shaler study, placed the coal supply in Kentucky as more extensive than that of Pennsylvania or of Great Britain and Ireland combined.
